

LINA ALFIERI STERN

Associate Director

LEVY-ROSENBLUM INSTITUTE FOR ENTREPRENEURSHIP

AT THE A. B. FREEMAN SCHOOL OF BUSINESS, TULANE UNIVERSITY

Lina Alfieri Stern obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology from Tulane University's Newcomb College in 1992 and a Master in Business Administration degree from the A. B. Freeman School in 1997. She is the associate director of the Levy-Rosenblum Institute, director of the TABA Community Service Program, and program director and co-founder of the Greater New Orleans Individual Development Account Collaborative (GNOIDAC). She teaches a graduate course in Community Service Consulting at the A. B. Freeman School of Business and directs field studies performed as part of the course. She serves on the board of directors of the Central City Economic Opportunity Corporation and has served as Chair of the Economic Development Committee for the Central City Partnership, a coalition of community development and neighborhood representatives of the Central City area in New Orleans. In April 2001, Ms. Stern received the New Orleans CityBusiness Power Generation Forty Faces of the Future Award honoring young professionals in the greater New Orleans area.